Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Saturday, June 25

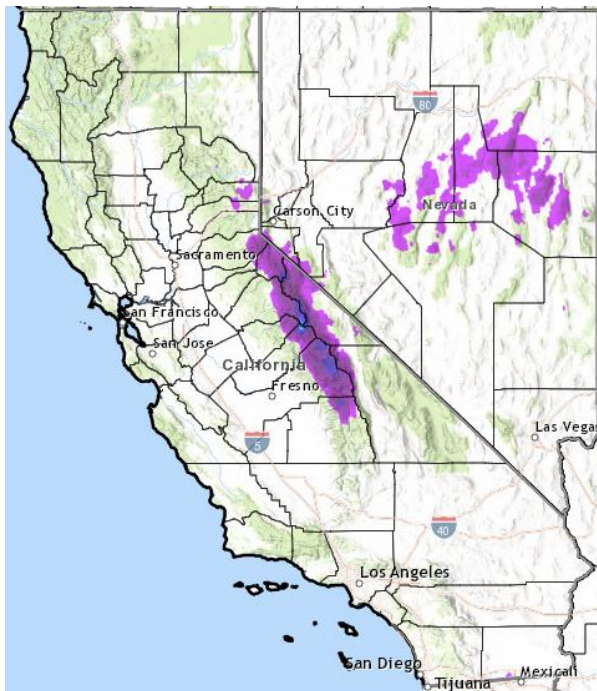

- The weather pattern remains very stagnant across the state through early in the week, with continued hot temperatures inland bringing moderate to locally high heat risk impacts. Temperatures will trend cooler for mid to late week.
 - Afternoon readings of 100 to 107 degrees will continue across the Central Valley and inland southern California valleys, with even hotter readings over the southeast deserts
 - Temperatures will also warm considerably across the northern California valleys and Modoc Plateau through Monday
 - Overnight low temperatures will remain more comfortable, falling into the 50s and 60s for many areas, and into the 70s over the southern deserts
- Fire weather conditions will be locally elevated most afternoons through the weekend and much of next week due to breezy winds, particularly Monday through Wednesday. Widespread critical fire weather conditions are not expected.
- Scattered showers and thunderstorms remain possible for the afternoon and evening hours Saturday, mainly over the central Sierra. Dry conditions will return for the majority of the state into next week.
 - A few storms could produce locally heavy rainfall on Saturday
